Lunchtime Lecture The Right to Data Portability

19 May 2017

Lisbon Conference Room, Lower Ground Floor
Institute for European Studies, VUB
5 Pleinlaan, 1050, Brussel

The right to data portability is listed among the most important novelties within the GDPR, both in terms of new control rights granted to data subjects and in terms of its intersection between data protection and other fields of law (for example, competition law, intellectual property, consumer protection, etc.). Despite of its internet social media origins, that perhaps continue to shape its public perception, the right to data portability, particularly if interpreted in an expansive manner, may find application in numerous fields and industries involved in personal data processing. Its exact content is, therefore, of crucial importance. This lunchtime seminar is aimed at highlighting the raison d'être of this new right to data portability, its potential scope, as well as its relationship to other individual rights within the GDPR.
